

Gloucestershire's Integrated Sexual Health Service

Training Menu 2023

Who are we?

Gloucestershire is proud to have a highly-regarded integrated sexual health service. We are committed to providing friendly, accessible, holistic and evidence-based sexual healthcare to the population of Gloucestershire.

We are all practising clinicians and have a long history of working together as a team and in partnership with other institutions to deliver sexual health education and training. We provide clinical placements for F2 doctors and GP trainees and training for the Faculty of Sexual and Reproductive Healthcare (FSRH) qualifications.

We also deliver masterclasses for implant and coil fitters, as well as regular contraception and sexual health updates aimed at healthcare professionals working in the community.

We have a wealth of experience in providing a varied and comprehensive range of training, including the development of bespoke sessions to meet the needs of teams involved in sexual healthcare. An example of this is the emergency contraception training we deliver to School Nurses and Minor Injuries Unit staff. This enables them to competently assess women requiring emergency contraception, working safely within the Trust-approved patient group directions (PGDs).

Contact details for the education administrator and the course application form can be found at the bottom of this information sheet.
